

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON THE HISTORY OF THE MIDDLE EAST

The International Conference on the History of the Middle East is a unique opportunity for scholars from around the world to discuss the latest research on the region's past. The conference will focus on the period from the late Ottoman Empire to the present day, with particular emphasis on the role of the British and French empires in the region.

The conference will be held in London, UK, from 15-19 September 2024. The programme includes keynote speeches, panel discussions, and individual presentations. The conference is open to all scholars, regardless of their nationality or institutional affiliation. The conference fee is £1000, which includes accommodation, meals, and access to the conference materials. The conference is a must-attend event for anyone interested in the history of the Middle East.

The conference is organized by the British Association for Middle Eastern Studies (BAMES) in partnership with the Middle East Studies Association (MESA). The conference is a major event in the Middle East studies calendar and is expected to attract over 1000 participants. The conference will be held at the Royal Society of Medicine, London, which is a world-class venue for international conferences. The conference is a great opportunity for scholars to meet and discuss their research with colleagues from around the world. The conference is a must-attend event for anyone interested in the history of the Middle East.

The conference is a unique opportunity for scholars to discuss the latest research on the region's past. The conference will focus on the period from the late Ottoman Empire to the present day, with particular emphasis on the role of the British and French empires in the region. The conference is open to all scholars, regardless of their nationality or institutional affiliation. The conference fee is £1000, which includes accommodation, meals, and access to the conference materials. The conference is a must-attend event for anyone interested in the history of the Middle East.

The conference is organized by the British Association for Middle Eastern Studies (BAMES) in partnership with the Middle East Studies Association (MESA). The conference is a major event in the Middle East studies calendar and is expected to attract over 1000 participants. The conference will be held at the Royal Society of Medicine, London, which is a world-class venue for international conferences. The conference is a great opportunity for scholars to meet and discuss their research with colleagues from around the world. The conference is a must-attend event for anyone interested in the history of the Middle East.

The conference is a unique opportunity for scholars to discuss the latest research on the region's past. The conference will focus on the period from the late Ottoman Empire to the present day, with particular emphasis on the role of the British and French empires in the region. The conference is open to all scholars, regardless of their nationality or institutional affiliation. The conference fee is £1000, which includes accommodation, meals, and access to the conference materials. The conference is a must-attend event for anyone interested in the history of the Middle East.

