INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE JUDGMENT IN THE CASE CONCERNING DIYI

The International Court of Justice, composed of the President and the Judges, has heard the case concerning the interpretation of the Convention on the Law of the Sea. The Court has given the following judgment.

The Court is divided into two equally divided opinions. The majority of five Judges, consisting of the President, Judge X, Judge Y, Judge Z, and Judge A, has found that the Convention applies to the facts of the case. Judge B has dissented, finding that the Convention does not apply.

The majority opinion, delivered by the President, finds that the Convention applies to the facts of the case. It holds that the Convention is the applicable law for the purposes of the case. The majority opinion is based on the text of the Convention and the object and purpose of the Convention. The majority opinion is supported by the dissenting opinion of Judge B.

The dissenting opinion, delivered by Judge B, finds that the Convention does not apply to the facts of the case. Judge B argues that the Convention is not applicable to the facts of the case because the Convention is not intended to apply to the facts of the case. Judge B also argues that the Convention is not applicable to the facts of the case because the Convention is not intended to apply to the facts of the case. Judge B's dissenting opinion is supported by the majority opinion of the President.

The Court has also heard the case concerning the interpretation of the Convention on the Law of the Sea. The Court has given the following judgment. The majority of five Judges, consisting of the President, Judge X, Judge Y, Judge Z, and Judge A, has found that the Convention applies to the facts of the case. Judge B has dissented, finding that the Convention does not apply.
