INTERNATIONAL TRADE AND COMMERCE

THE WORLD TRADE ORGANIZATION

The World Trade Organization (WTO) is an international organization that regulates trade between nations. It was established in 1995, replacing the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT). The WTO's primary goal is to ensure that trade flows as smoothly, predictably, and freely as possible. It provides a forum for negotiating trade agreements and for resolving trade disputes between member countries. The WTO also monitors national trade policies and provides technical assistance and training for developing countries.

The WTO is a permanent institution that provides a framework for international trade relations. It is the only international organization that deals with trade issues between nations. The WTO's membership is open to all countries, and it currently has 164 member states. The organization's headquarters are located in Geneva, Switzerland. The WTO's main function is to administer the World Trade Organization Agreement, which is a set of rules that govern trade between nations.

The WTO's main objective is to reduce trade barriers and to promote free trade. It does this by negotiating trade agreements and by providing a forum for resolving trade disputes. The WTO also monitors national trade policies and provides technical assistance and training for developing countries. The WTO's membership is open to all countries, and it currently has 164 member states. The organization's headquarters are located in Geneva, Switzerland.
