

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON THE LAW OF THE SEA

The International Conference on the Law of the Sea was convened in Geneva, Switzerland, in 1958. It was the first of a series of conferences that would eventually lead to the adoption of the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea in 1982. The conference was organized by the International Law Commission, which was established by the United Nations in 1948. The conference was held in Geneva from September 24 to October 2, 1958. It was attended by representatives from 26 countries. The conference was held in Geneva because of the city's reputation as a center of international law.
